Description

Antler is a traditional stern narrowboat, crafted in 1997 by Liverpool Boat Co., and embodies the elegance and simplicity of classic canal living. At 60ft long, her steel hull and superstructure offer durability and stability, making her a reliable choice for both extended journeys and tranquil moorings. The thoughtfully designed interior seamlessly blends practicality with traditional style, offering a warm and inviting space filled with natural light throughout.

The galley is compact yet functional, featuring a Belfast sink, gas cooker, and modest cupboard storage for essentials. Moving forward, the open-plan layout enhances the sense of space and flow, with a study area leading into a cosy saloon. The lounge exudes warmth, anchored by a Morso Squirrel stove and a comfortable sofa—ideal for relaxing evenings aboard. The bedroom, located towards the stern, includes a built-in bed with convenient under-bed storage, ensuring clutter-free living.

Antler's bathroom is well-equipped with a full-size shower, a sleek sink, and an eco-friendly composting toilet, providing modern amenities in a traditional setting. While there are a few minor issues—such as a non-functional headlamp, a loose throttle lever, and two underperforming oven hobs—these are opportunities to personalise and enhance this character-filled vessel.

Bright and airy, with charming traditional details, Antler is perfect for those seeking a timeless narrowboat experience, ready to become a cosy home or a weekend escape.
